DOKLAM ISSUE

Nathu La route for Kailash pilgrims

Understanding the Doklam border issue why it is critical?

The offensive stand of China on Doko La (Doklam) and India's strong warning in return, is the latest addition to the worries that spoil Indo-China relations. It started when India (Indian Army) objected a road construction by the People's Liberation Army (PLA) of China in the Doklam plateau which China claims to be a part of its Donglang region. However, India and Bhutan recognise it as Doklam, a Bhutan territory.

Later, China accused Indian troops of entering in its territory and India accused the Chinese of destroying its bunkers (People's Liberation Army bulldozed an old bunker of the Indian army stationed in Doklam). Thereafter China stopped the passage pilgrims heading toward Kailash-Mansarovar through the Nathu La pass, Sikkim. The route is a better alternative to Lepu Lekh route via Uttarakhand and had been opened for pilgrims in 2015.

Hereafter, both India and China increased the presence of their troops and since then there has been a war of words especially from the Chinese state media.

Although a military standoff was averted, diplomatic negotiations have not yielded many results to cool-off the passions across the border. The recent initiatives including Dhola-Sadiya bridge (Bhupen Hazarika Setu-9.2km-Connects Assam with Arunachal Pradesh) are a welcome step as they help bring down the travel time and as such, a military response time as well.

A Brahmos cruise missile regiment is being deployed in Arunachal Pradesh. This clearly signals Indian intentions to China, that finds every opportunity to reiterate its sanction over the territory. Many abandoned airstrips in India are also being reactivated. Though thought-provoking, it is a step towards the right direction.

Positivity and Success

The world is the mirror of your own perceptions. Life is a cycle of happy and sad moments. Make sure you grab every blissful moment you get in your life and when the cycle rotates and you face grievances, just remember the cherishing moments of your life and they will hold you strong. There might be thousand bad things happening around you, but that does not mean the end of the world. There will surely be a joyful moment even on the worst day. Always remember, everyone has in them the ability to convert the tragic moment into a worthy moment. Some people in spite of having a million of difficulty in life, try hard and shine out from the rest of the crowd. The only difference that lies in people who succeed and who do not is the perception. Winners are those who manage to smile even when there is no hope of anything good happening. Live each day as if it's your last day and believe me your success will have no boundaries. Keep yourself motivated and be inspired to reach great heights. Every frown will convert into a smile, if and only if you want it.

IF I ONLY HAD ONE DAY TO TEACH

If I only had one day to teach, the moral I want to impart is persistence and discipline, where Persistence motivates us to never give up in life no matter how tough life seems, Discipline is that driving force which helps us to grow, and leads us towards a better path in life. All problems have solution like every pad lock has a key. Know that just because problems seem never-ending does not mean solutions are nowhere to be found. We just have to stand firm, Face the challenges, with courage and conviction, and have a chance to overcome it. Persistence and Discipline are those skills which will never let us fail, it will surely paint our life with happiness and success. We can learn the real meaning of discipline from prakrati (Nature) Imagine if the sun decides to take the day off and not rise at all! That means 24 hours of night and a lot of chaos, imagine there is no moon to give us light, life would be in dark, when the sun rises and sets at right time, everyday moon rises at time, rivers always flow, when seasons are on the time then why we humans don't follow the spiritual path of discipline? Let us begin with the simplest aspect of discipline and persistence which nature has.

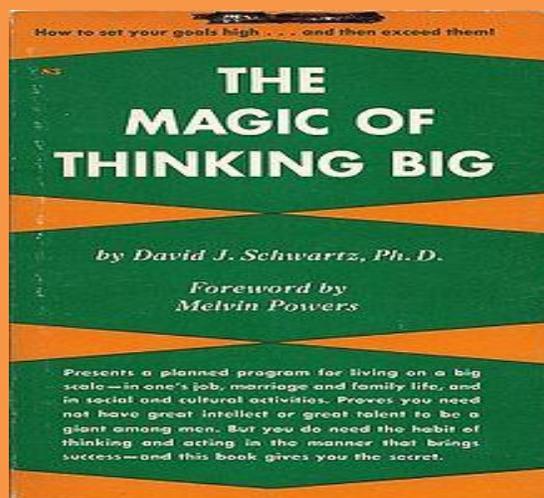

As Lorii Myers says

"Your success is your responsibility. Take the initiative, be discipline, and persist to the end."

CLASSIC FROM LIBRARY "The Magic of Thinking Big"

The book "The magic of thinking big" written by David J. Schwartz, based on the philosophy that "Life is too short to be little" is the only book I can read 'n' number of times. Everytime I read the book, I discover something new that I never read. The book is based on the idea that our thinking can do wonders. The book is all about how to be successful. All of us believe that success comes to those who work hard. But this book gave me a whole new perspective on what it takes to be successful. It says that successful people achieve success simply because they believe they can achieve it. It says that it's just your attitude toward things that matters the most. After reading this book, I really felt a big difference in me. Before any negative thought the first thing that comes to my mind is "There is nothing good or bad except that your thinking makes it so", which I learnt from this book. The book taught me everything needed for a happy and contented life. The way the book is written is amazing.

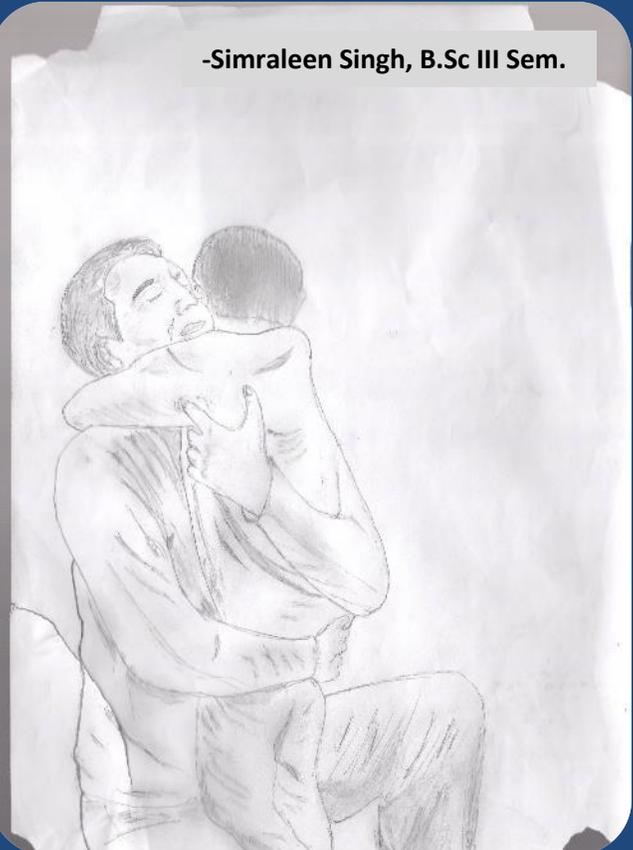

This book gives a very nice message:

"Think big and you'll live big, when you'll live in happiness, you'll start living big, big in accomplishment, big in income, big in friends and above all big in respect –Start now ,right now ,to discover how to make your thinking make magic for you" .

PARIS IS A BEAUTIFUL CITY

Some moments you experience while travelling end up completely blowing you away, in ways you'd never have expected. They stay with you forever, and year later you still smile at the fond memories. After my exams, I got chance to visit Europe with my family, a journey which will always remain in the core of my heart just coz it was my first journey to abroad that too with the family. the journey began and the first destination we chose was Germany. we had a connecting flight via Kuwait after 24 hours I reached Germany, place I've longed to visit! Germany is rich with history and has become famous for its alternative culture of world famous parties, fashion, music and food. I was completely spell bound by the beauty of this country from there we headed to cologne.

The colorful buildings, picturesque cityscapes wonderful castles, cute street trams make this city truly unique! What attracted me most was 200 yrs. old Church beauty, scale and the history of this masterpiece is so rich that it will leave a big smile and a huge sense of satisfaction for those who love old buildings. Next, we landed to Switzerland, it was an awesome experience to explore Zurich a place filled with greenery and have good access to the lake, rivers, hills and forests. I always wanted to see Eiffel tower as it attracted me the most, and finally my dream came true when I stepped into this beautiful city. A city with very fun and interesting things to see and do. There are many incredible sights with wonderful restaurants and food. Elegant restaurants and casual sidewalk cafes lie throughout the city. It was a national day of paris so there was a firework near Eiffel tower, still cannot find words to express that how attractive the tower was looking.

The architecture of the Eiffel Tower impressed me immensely and continues to do so. From the top of this magnificent structure it is possible to see all across the lovely city. Also, we can see the most popular museum of France, that is the Louvre. The Louvre contains historical paintings, sculptures and other forms of arts such as the Mona Lisa.! The palace's gardens are very beautiful and left us spellbound, there are clothing stores, bakeries, restaurants and more. Finally, our journey ended and it was a journey where unknown joy slipped into our soul and we returned home with lot of fond memories.
