Excursion Trip to Delhi - A Peep into Reality

The trip on the 20th of April 2016 featured a visit by the students to some of the exotic Malls in Delhi NCR where the footfall is of an appreciable nature. The aim was to study and understand consumer behavior through Observatory Research and also the effort was made to record their reasons on paper with the help of Questionnaires framed by the students to map the consumer behavior of people visiting these malls at random hours irrespective of the class. The Questionnaires were not subject to any kind of gender discretion.

After their research work was done, they also indulged in some leisure activities like visit to the Adventure Island, where they enjoyed to the fullest and in the end while returning they stated that such trips are welcome, since they give the students an opportunity to understand each other better, know the real meaning of team work, and understand that responsibility and wisdom go hand in hand.

BOOK REVIEW

All Things Cease to Appear

All Things Cease to Appear is a lot of things. A tragic, transcendent book that marries a haunting story to wonderfully crafted prose, characterizations and imagery. It's at once a murder mystery, ghost tale, family drama, and love story, as well as an evocative portrait of the people and landscape of upstate New York, where most of the action takes place. It kept me riveted throughout, and had some interesting twists and turns. This is a novel of many layers, and each layer is masterfully constructed. The characters are extremely well rendered, coming to life on the page. The author is masterful at telling a slow meandering suspense filled story. I loved every word, every phrase and had no idea how this book would end. Readers who love reading a brilliantly wordy book filled with beautiful descriptive phrases but also filled with suspense...those readers will love this book.

POEM

EVERLASTING DESIRE

My unseen, never dying, everlasting desire,
 I wish, I never grown up,
 I wish, I had fairy tales,
 I wish, I would have cartoons,
 So, that I would have gone into my past,
 I wish, it all had come true,
 Childhood is a time of our innocence,
 Maturity threatens me,
 When I was small, I took fighting as sign of love,
 Now, I am afraid to be loved,
 In school, it was difficult to learn synonyms,
 And now, we have made our own Thesaurus,
 I am not afraid of wrinkles,
 But I still love to sing twinkle-twinkle,
 It was taught that growing is part of life,
 But still I ask my creator,
 Why have you not created a stopwatch?
 I would have paused my childhood stage,
 In my innocence, I learned how to wash my hand,
 But now seems like we have been brained washed,
 Some say, still a small child resides in our heart,
 Then why do we act mature?
 Yes, I say,
 I still want to sleep on my mother's lap,
 I still fear darkness,
 I still cry like a small child,
 I still eat like one,
 Writing these lines, I suddenly realize,
 I have grown a day older,
 I wish, I had not grown older.
 This whole life is like a book,
 Fill it with emotions make it interesting,
 So, whenever you turn back the pages,
 It brings a beautiful smile on your face,
 And washes away all your sadness.
